Driver Is Killed Near Rockport

A fatal tragedy occurred Sunday evening when the car William C. Madill, 76, of Salt Lake City was driving failed to negotiate a curve on a road leading to Wanship Dam.

Utah Highway Patrol Trooper Stanley said Mr. Madill was pronounced dead on arrival at the Coalville hospital.

Investigating officers said Mr. Madill appeared to have made the turn on one curve of the road, but did not turn his wheel when he approached the next curve. His auto went off the left embankment, then veered across the road and rolled over.
